

Shaman Drum

TMST100
Buffalo drum, synthetic Remo skin,
5 sizes, incl. striker

TMST200
Simple goat skin, white or colourful
Batik design, 4 sizes, incl. striker

TMST300
Gong drum, very light, 7 sizes from 25cm to 75cm

TMST400
Cow hide with hair, very solid,
traditional tensioning system

TMST500
Gong Drum with stand, 60 and 90cm

TMST800
 Traditional Indian, buffalo or cow
 hide, smooth, very robust,

TMST600
 Various Native American styles

TMST700
 Alaska Fire Drum, ideal for sweat lodges

Stick
ZUSC001

Shaman drums are of Native American origin, and born entirely from the religious-ritual life of the Indians. These drums are made from solid wooden bodies or frames which are covered with thick Buffalo or Elk skin. Thin stripes of skin or sinews hold the skins in the right position. The strikers are also handmade: a carved stick and soft leather used for the beater head. Sometimes they are decorated with pearls and coloured cords. Traditionally the drum is painted with ritual symbols like eagle, buffalo, kokopelli and others.

Shaman drums are available in different sizes and covered either on only one or on both sides. Their magical sound is fascinating. As an instrument that was formerly used only for religious rites, the Shaman Drum serves nowadays for healing purposes and trance journeys.

Creative drum makers have produced modern drums with an authentic sound and look. Tunable models are available, too.